Young Teachers Offer Potty-Training Service

By PATTY BEUTLER Star Staff Writer

Though many a mom might argue that the job should be hers, two young teachers in town have taken up the art of

Marvin Dice, a special education teacher, and Dick Oldfield, a counselor at General Arnold School, believe they are the first in Lincoln to offer such a service. although they do not claim to be the originators of the training method.

With master's degrees and strong backgrounds in behavioral psychology, the two were attracted by a national news article about two psychologists who had developed a technique for training

toddlers Research Paper

Spurred on by the challenge, they wrote away for and received the psychologists' original research manuscript which outlined the training method step

Acknowledging that conditioning and reinforcement have been used in other terms of behavior, they nonetheless approached their first test-case with more than a touch of skepticism.

But their doubts were dispelled in less than four hours when their first untrained toddler doffed his diapers for more adult

Training Total

Stunned by their quick success. Dice and Oldfield spent the next few weeks nervously phoning the toddler's mother to check on his progress, only to learn that the youngster had stopped wetting at night as well as during the day.

Although not trained for night-time control, the child stayed dry through incidental learning, explained Dice

In essence, the training is effected through social learning, with a doll used as a model. In a distraction-tree room in the child's home, he watches as his new teacher-triends talk through a routine with a doll who has to go to the bathroom. The doll receives plentiful praise for each phase of the process it successfully completes

"We felt a little ridiculous at first when we practiced the doll routine," admitted Oldfield but the more they hammed it up the more interested the child became in imitating the same steps and receiving the praise for himself.

"It's like a stage performance." observed Dice, with a time and a place for everything. Timing is a "vital element." added Oldfield, who explained that praise reinforces only what it immediately follows.

Potato Chips, Pop

Although the social praise and approval of his mentors is most meaningful to the child, potato chips and soda pop serve as additional rewards.

If the child should have an accident in the course of the training, he is faced with the absence of rewards and social disapproval from his two new friends.

The routine with the doll is repeated at intervals until the child initiates the action on his own, receiving all the praise

Once this happens, explained Oldfield. the child has trained himself and resents any help from the adults

Dice and Oldfield gradually ease themselves out of the environment, letting the child take over more and more until his normal routine has been re-

Musical Potty

The musical potty the pair uses in the training usually provokes some comment But Oldfield emphasized that it is the program and not the potty which is important in the training. The music simply serves to cue the trainers of the child's success, so they can immediately reinforce his behavior with praise

Although parents could employ the same techniques in training their child, Dice believes that "one needs the experience of having used behaviorism in the past" to try to do it.

Bolstered by their success with three test-case toddlers, the pair is ready to take on even the most willful wetter.

Although they charge for their services, the two guarantee that no fee will be required if the child is not trained at the end of the session.

For those mothers who doubt that the job can be done in one sitting. Dice and Oldfield offer one consolation four hours of free baby-sitting, if nothing else

Senate Axes All Cash For Indochina Actions

Washington - The Senate voted overwhelmingly Thursday in favor of cutting off all funds for United States military actions in Indochina.

It acted five hours after Henry A Kissinger had urged senators to give the Nixon administration more time to achieve a cease-fire in Cambodia, where American planes have been supporting the government of President Lon Nol with heavy bombing

The antiwar provision, which would cut off all funds — past, present and future — to finance U. S. combat activities in North Vietnam, South Vietnam, Laos or Cambodia unless specifically authorized by Congress, was part of a $609.1 million State Department authorization bill that passed, 67 to 15.

As the Senate approved the measure, there was scarcely any mention of the Indochina war and administration supporters, who anticipated defeat by a wide margin, did not even try to strike the fund cutoff provision from the bill.

The bill now goes to conference with the House, which has passed a similar bill authorizing funds for the State Department but without any fund cutoff for In-

On May 31, the Senate passed another fund cutoff provision drafted by Sen Thomas F Eagleton, D-Mo., that would probibit the use of any past or present funds for combat activities in Cambodia

That was part of a bill making supplemental appropriations to keep various federal departments operating through the end of the current fiscal year. June 30, and would not restrict the use of any appropriations for combat activities after the new fiscal year begins July 1

However, the Eagleton amendment has bogged down in a Senate-House conference committee

Zumberge To Submit 'Hold-The-Line Budget'

By MILAN WALL Star Staff Writer

University of Nebraska-Lincoln Chancellor James H. Zumberge will recommend to the Board of Regents next week a 1973-74 UNL operating budget which holds the line on expenses and eliminates unfilled positions to ensure a 312' to 412' level of salary increases for faculty Essentially, Zumberge will internal recommend adjustments in the UNL instructional program to head off a potential deficit of $950,000 in the coming fiscal year.

That would be done, if the regents approve it, by foregoing for a second year in a row any inflationary increases for the cost of materials and supplies and by erasing from the books budgeted positions which have not been

During the fiscal year just ending, the UNL campus made up a similar deficit by ordering freezes in hiring and in expense accounts for supplies But, in effect, a similar deficit would be carried forward into the new fiscal year, since the freezes did not order deans and department chairmen to erase the budgeted faculty positions that were not filled.

Now, under Zumberge's recommendations the cut in positions would be made perma-Zumberge said Thursday that the cutbacks will not torce faculty members on the staff now to resign But it does me ii, he said, that there will be fewer vacancies to fill

Here's how Zumberge arrived at his recommendations

When the income was figured for the instructional program for the coming year, tuition increases and a $590,000 increase in state appropriations from the general fund boosted income to an anticipated $27.6 million.

But when expenses were figured, that column totaled $28.6 million, as the 31/21/4 to 41/2" salary increases were calculated and the 3% for inflation in supplies and materials was figured

So Zumberge cut back $302,000 by erasing any additional amounts for inflation in the cost of goods and ordered specific dollar cutbacks in every academic unit, including all schools, colleges and the library

Deans then supplied Zumberge with detail on how they would meet those cutbacks to total $648,000.

Then Zumberge allocated the 312' c for salary increases in each division and added another 1% from his discretionary account to provide for additional salary increases in selected areas, such as journalism, art, music. agriculture, home economics economics, accounting and some other areas

"Generally speaking," he said. "every budgetary unit gets an average of 312', for salary increases," while across the campus the total will be 412%, reflecting the selected salary improvements

Within colleges and departments, however, administrators were given the authority to use the salary money much as they see fit, rather than making across-theboard increases.

Miles Tommeraasen UNL director of business and finance said the campus could have gone into another year with the same base budget as last, and then ordered another freeze on expenditures to protect against another deficit

Instead the campus decided to reduce the base from which it operates, making the cuts permanent.

The cuts, he said, should head off another mid-year crisis, unless tuition income falls far below estimates which have already been reduced to reflect last year's experience

'Burglars Sought O'Brien Link'

Washington - In his testimony, Jeb Stuart Magruder said the Watergate burglars hoped to find evidence linking Lawrence F. The Democratic convention manager laughed at the revelation and said the plan had been rejected by the party and was no more a kick-back scheme than raising money from convention

End To Cambodian War Hinted

Washington - Henry A. Kissinger hinted broadly that North Vietnam had given the United States assurances that could lead to the end of the war in Cambodia. Though Kissinger refused to confirm reports of a secret understanding between Washington and Hanoi, he said nothing to dampen such speculation and noted that an agreement would no longer be secret if he discussed it publicly.

The Hails U.S.-Viet Agreement

Industry Price Rollbacks Threatened

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Nixon administration launched its new 60-day price freeze Thursday with a bigger enforcement stalt and the threat of price rollbacks in seven to nine industries

The Cost of Living Council also expressed concern that prices of red meat are close to their March 29 ceilings and are threatening to put a financial squeeze on some supermarkets and processors

Generally, however, the switch to the price freeze went smoothly The council, which administered President Nixon's 1971 90-day freeze, was ready with the answers to most questions. And it had its regulations already on the books.

EVENTS

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

President Nixon has added a modicum of stability to the nation's economy but the ultimate test of his endeavors remains a thing of the future. Specifically, his latest freeze on prices is but a stopgap, a hedge until he finalizes the program he reports will be inaugurated within the next 60

There are a host of uncertainties in what he has done with the price freeze. The one clear thing is that prices of most things should remain no higher than they are today, during the next 60 days.

That in itself is a point of some disagreement. In the past few months we have had record advances in retail prices and one might well question the impact of a freeze at such a point in time. It is somewhat along the order of locking the barn door after the horse is stolen.

Also, prices at the wholesale level have advanced substantially in recent months. But there are undoubtedly areas where the retail price has not yet caught up with the wholesale hike. What sort of hardship this will work on some segments of business is unknown at the moment, but you can expect some real grumbling in this area before the 60 days

Then, even in the President's own words, or a paraphrase of them, the new price freeze is a temporary measure. What happens to inflation and other aspects of the economy will hinge upon the decisions made and implemented in August.

There is not much of a real hint as to what they will be.

"This new Phase IV set of controls (to be announced in 60 days)," said Nixon, "will be designed to contain the forces that have sent prices so rapidly upward in the past few months. It will involve tighter standards and more mandatory compliance procedures than under Phase III. It will recognize the need for wages and prices to be treated consistently with one another.'

The key word in the above seems to be "standards." Just exactly what does Nixon mean by "tighter standards?" He may mean controls, guidelines or something else.

Thus, we have no clear insight as to what the future will bring and this in itself will produce an uncertainty in economic circles in the months ahead. What impact it will have on capital investment, on the stock market and on foreign trade is anybody's guess.

The American people, of course, will welcome the fact that retail prices will at least go no higher in the next 60 days. At least, they will go no higher except in the possible area of foodstuffs.

We do not pretend to know what is meant by the President's exemption of unprocessed agricultural products from the freeze.

He explained that prices paid directly to farmers will be allowed to seek a free market level but after the first initial sale by the farmer, the freeze will apply. But will wholesale and retail food prices be able to advance in accordance with any increase in the price received by farmers?

If not, there will be, for all practical purposes, a freeze on unprocessed agricultural goods also.

Our feeling is that the political and economic situation is not looking well for agriculture at the moment but will warrant careful watching.

The President's new economic program is a finger in the dike and clearly awaits the heavy machinery to be moved in 60 days hence.

WASHINGTON — Sudden summer temperatures mugging. Republicans, There's your coali-Washington may offer the best explanation - intellectual heatstroke - for the serious attention being paid to liberal Democratic suggestions that President Nixon should form (or resign in favor of) a coalition government including, say, Ed Muskie and Hubert Humphrey or some other warriors of vestervear.

This has to be the least plausi-Congressman Henry Reuss opined that Nixon and Agnew should resign in tayor of House Speaker Carl Albert, Power is not a commodity to be lightly shared. A national-level coalition is workable only to the extent that it represents a constituency with some general agreement on the pressing issues of the day. The idea of Republicans going into coalition with liberal Democrats is ideologically obscene, while a non-partisan caretaker regime would betray 1972 voter hopes.

To be sure, the idea of a Nixon resignation may have merit, depending on how the next few weeks untold. But the idea of a coalition makes good sense only if political logic is satisfied

Consider these facts. Last year, Richard Nixon got 61% of the presidential vote with his best showing (70 c) coming in the South. Taken together, Republican Senate nominees and conservative Southern Democrats got more than 60% of the 1972 popular vote. Republicans and conservative Southern Democrats in U.S. House races got somewhat less than 60' of the vote. What is more, many of these conservative Southern "Democrats" were giving the Republican President open or covert campaign support.

Southern Democrats and tion it a clean new team is needed, and it has philosophic as well as election mandate logic. Who can maintain that the lopsided 1972 vote is affected - last November or now - by the Watergate mess?

On what public verdict do the liberal Democrats base their case for a piece of executive branch nower? On the 40% of the vote that liberal Democratic ble suggestion since Wisconsin congressional candidates received in 1972? On Ed Muskie's massive primary outpouring (just what primary was it --- Wisconsin's, I think --where Muskie's vote petered into nothingness)? On Hubert Humphrey's appeal? After all, it was not until the 1972 campaign his third presidential try that he finally won his first (*) primary. And surely the entitlement of the liberal Democrats to a coalition government does not stem from their acumen in nonunating the Hon. George S McGovern. Philadelphia telephone pollster Albert Nixon and McGovern, and the President — despite the stain of Watergate - beat the South Dakotan by a larger margin than in November!

My hat is off to the liberal Democrats for once again showing the brass that has put them in this city's saddle for so many years. A few months ago, they were on the ropes: I mean really on the ropes. And now the Watergate imbroglio gives them a handle for trying to mockmoralize their way back to the teeding trough, so we get this nonsense about a coalition including Muskie, Humphrey or some other Great Society usedprogram dealers.

The new pact was scheduled to go into effect last midnight and the chances of it working, based on experience, are small.

To place the situation in its proper perspective, it might be helpful to review what has happened since the first cease-fire agreement went into effect Jan. 27th. There have been thousands of violations of the agreement reported by both sides in the conflict, with the Saigon government claiming 16,567 specific violations on the part of the communists alone. One estimate of casualties since the original truce was signed puts the total at 61,626 killed and wounded, including 23,259 communists and 5,989 South Vietnamese killed in action. The cease-fire supervisory commission has been rent by ideological conflict and the Canadian team has pulled out, not wanting to contribute to an illusion Scrupulous adherence to the terms of the new agreement-which was essentially a restatement of the old-would put an end to hostilities for as long as the terms were adhered to. But it is almost too much to hope or believe that the military forces of reconciliation" was accomplished.

Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield said he is discontinuing the service tor "anything to get out all the way." But there is trouble in the pact even for that washing-of-hands attitude. For one thing, there is nothing said in the accord about American air activity in Cambodia. Congress will have to take care of that. For another, the U.S. reportedly had to coerce the in the private sector. South Vietnamese government of President Thieu into signing the agreement and now will probably of abuse of the public's interest, the public interest must be have to coerce Thieu into keeping to it.

With history as a guide it would appear that agreement after agreement can be signed-to no avail. Peace will come when one side or the other is strong enough to impose its rule and the U.S. has two choices in the matter: it can stay out and risk Thieu's fall, or it can get back in.

a negotiated settlement allowing all factions a role in the future, depends, as Kissinger says, on the good will of the signatories to the agreement.

And without it, the new cease-fire agreement is just a scrap of paper.

employes in secret is. But that is what happens in Lincoln city government.

This week, a Lincoln Star eporter was forced to find out. through investigative reporting, what Lincoln's City Employe Association was asking in the way of pay hikes for next year.

It was a good job of digging out the news, but it was an exercise that never should have been necessary.

When public employes bargain, what they want and why should be public business made formal. And, likewise, the city's responses at each turn should be public too.

The problem in all this is that public employes have a different sort of economic power from that exercised by private workers at the bargaining table.

In private business, higher wages may lead to higher prices. Sometimes, perhaps, they mean smaller margin of profit.

If neither of those options is acceptable to the business involved, it always has the choice of going out of business.

That may sot be a comfortable decision, but it is an option.

But in public employment (and I include private businesses which have monopolies on services to the public) the option of generally is not possible.

Thus, when public employes approach the bargaining table, they have at their disposa! a bargaining weapon not available

And that raises the possibility

Let's say, for example, that the city's policemen ask for raises that would not be acceptable to the city fathers. The policemen hold to their demands and finally threaten a

The potential interruption of a necessary government service could lead to problems of public

To protect their own elected positions, city representatives negotiate a longterm contract that provides small raises in the immediate future, but much from the minute the request is larger ones a year or two down the road.

> The biggest impact, in terms of the local tax dollar, could be delayed until after the officials who permitted the increase have left public office.

And the result could be to leave with taxing problems officials who weren't there to make the decisions at the time of the bargaining sessions.

The alternative wouldn't be attractive, either, since it might mean temporary discontinuance of a necessary public service. And that could raise havoc with the elected officials who are in power now.

The choices, therefore, may be very difficult ones. But for the public who pays the taxes the alternatives may be all the more difficult if that public has no idea of what the options are and no chance to make its voice heard until after the contracts are negotiated and sealed.

It's exactly for that reason that protected when public employes bargain.

And one of the ways to do that is to make the bargaining sessions public, at least by permitting reporters to sit through them and report the progress in the press. That very practice is one which is used in the Lincoln Public Schools, but apparently not done elsewhere in local government. In the public schools. reporters are permitted to write stories on the various proposals traded back and forth between teachers and school board negotiators throughout the bargaining process. And, in fact, reporters know exactly what the school board intends to offer to its employes before negotiations begin and are briefed by teacher representatives on what they intend to

Throughout the spring of each year, local papers carry stories on the progress of negotiations. reporting from meeting to meeting what is happening across the bargaining table.

The result is to give the public a chance to know where things stand and to speak out, if it wants, on how much it believes teachers should get or how much it believes the board should be willing to pay.

A similar arrangement should be demanded by the people of Lincoln in all aspects of local government so that a comparable opportunity for public participation is provided. If not, it might be argued that teachers are put in an unfair situation, and only because they and the public board that employs them are living up to their responsibilities to their ultimate employers - the people

As evidence of that new attitude, he arrives on an official visit to the United States this weekend. Ordinarily, an event of that diplomatic magnitude would receive much advance attention and analysis. Now. what with wage-price moves and Kissinger-Tho meetings and Senate Watergate hearings, the American attitude toward the Soviet leader seems to be, "Make yourself at home, we're a

The Brezhnev visit is far more than a ceremonial return call after last year's Moscow summit. Sen. Henry Jackson for one, hopes the meeting will be merely cosmetic - he is fearful that shortening of the word substantive matters will be discussed and agreements may be reached during "a risky time for bargaining." But the President is not about to halt the momentum of detente because the Senate is mining the harbors of the White House.

What will come out of this visit? A group of agreements will be signed - agriculture. culture, taxes, maybe a pleasant surprise on scientific cooperation — that have been marching toward conclusion for a year. There will be no "centerpiece," as at the Moscow summit - no strategic arms limitation signing, reversing the dangerous trend of a generation — but SALT will certainly be a topic of their talks, and the two men at the top may resolve some impasses that trouble the negotiators of SALT II.

Strolling down the beach at San Clemente, they are bound to discuss how and when U.S. and Soviet troops should be withdrawn from Western Europe. Neither will make commitments, but there will undoubtedly be some probing of positions on what must be the next great step away from world

The focus of public attention will be on trade: that's where the action is today, and that's where the paradox can be found.

American conservatives, who used to be leery of doing business with the communists, are now in the forefront of commercial activism - led by businessmen who salivate at new markets and new sources of raw

American liberals, who used to be anxious to increase contact with the Soviet Union, are now looking dubious about doing business: "Would it be wise," wonders economics Prof. Gregory Grossman in the New Republic, "for us to assume the role of the Soviet Union's banker?"

The reason for reversal of ideological roles is partly political — some of Nixon's foes do not want his domestic troubles obscured by dramatic successes in building a structure of peace — but more of the fliptiop's reason is economic, since conservative businessmen are partial to, and liberais suspicious of, "big deals."

The Soviets see these years as a time for milking the West, gaining the technology and the financing to enable them to dominate the world a generation hence. As Brezhnev exhorts, Nixon-style, in his new book: "Comrades we are not building a land of idlers where rivers flow

The Americans see these years as a time for modifying (some would say subverting) communism, turning Marxism's economic determinism back on itself by steadily increasing Soviet responsiveness to market demands, helping accelerate the trend toward capitalism. Neither side admits to such gutsy long-range goals, of course - we like to communicate in the soothing rhetoric of cooperation. But because our dealings are rooted in self-interest, there is at least a chance that the realists rather than the idealists will force peace down the throat of the world.

I was tempted to offer a toast to LIB's visit using the vodka that the Soviets presented to the Americans who accompanied the President to Moscow last year: unfortunately the top of the decanter was defective and all the vodka evaporated. Press on with the big deals, but watch those guys.

Robert Kennedy was uniquely able to do the terribly difficult thing that America needs: to meet the urgent demand for change while holding on to the values that have mattered in our national life. Niobrara Relocation Is Topic Of Meeting town of Niobrara will be the structural damage topic of a public meeting Tuesday at 7 30 pm in the elementary school auditorium This will be conducted by Col. Alfred L. Griebling, the Corps of Engineers' Omaha district engmeer

The meeting is being held to acquaint landowners, tenants and others with policies and procedures which will be followed by the federal government in buying the lands on the present Niobrara townsite

Public Law 91-646, the Uniform Relocations Assistance and Real Property Acquisition Policies Act passed by Congress in 1970, will also be discussed.

Because of the rising groundwater table, many homes in Niobrara have water in their basements ranging from several feet. Some homes and business questions

Niobrara - Relocation of the establishments have suffered

At nearby Niobrara State Park the trees, vegetation and sanitary disposal system have also been damaged

As a result, Congress has anproved federal acquisition of the properties within the corporate limits of the town, as well as the state park

The Village Planning Commission, with help from the local citizenry, has determined that relocation of the town is the proper course of action.

The new townsite is located immediately south of the school. Plans are being completed for the grading of the area. preparatory to staking out lots and installing streets and utilities

Griebling said an opportunity will be given to everyone atteninches to approximately three ding the meeting to ask

NPPD Seeks OK

Omaha (UPI) -- An official of Kramer plant produces the Nebraska Public Power District (NPPD) said Thursday that the Kramer power plant at Bellevue must be allowed to temporarily violate state air pollution control regulations Dan Rice, director of planning for NPPD, said if such an arrangement is not made, many Nebraskans will experience power shortages.

The district, Rice said, cannot meet the demands of customers from now through 1976 without using the 113 megawatts the Rice commented at a public hearing on NPPD's request for a variance from state regulations until June 1, 1976 The hearing was called by the State Department of Environmental Control. The department said its studies indicate the Kramer plant is emitting about six times as much particulate pollution as regulations allow.

NPPD plans to install control equipment by mid-1976 to correct the situation.

Enough Electricity Seen For Summer

here said Thursday it will have sufficient electricity to meet the demand for the summer.

Ron Bogus, public information supervisor at NPPD, said due to the power outages that the eastern regions of the country have been experimenting, several persons have called NPPD concerning Nebraska's supply for the summer.

Bogus said, "We feel we have sufficient reserves to meet our anticipated peak load for Nebraska which usually occurs in August

Bogus explained that the peak in Nebraska is caused by the combined air conditioner load from businesses and homes along with the irrigation load from the farmer.

The information supervisor

Columbus, (UPI) - The said, "We have available three Nebraska Public Power District 50,000 kilowatt peaking units located near Hebron, McCook and at Sheldon station near Hallam We also have 147% electricity available on reserve above the neak load

> Bogus said NPPD tries to maintain at least 12% of electricity on reserve at all times.

> He said the only thing that would cause any outage this summer would be a mechanical failure of a generator.

> The peak last year was reached on Aug. 16 with 1,291,-400 kilowatt hours of electricity being generated and NPPD anticipates 1.490,000 kilowatt hours during the peak load this year.

Bogus added that NPPD serves 333 towns, 85 of the 93 counties and over one-half million people in the state

Gas Saving Tips Given By Council

Total gasoline consumption for both highway and nonhighway uses in Nebraska amounted to 971,215,000 gallons in 1972, according to the Nebraska Petroleum Council

Charles E Chace, executive director noted that the figure represented a 3 4% increase over the previous year This compared with a 65% rise nationwide

In 1971, the state's gasoline consumption amounted to 886. 893 000 gallons

In view of the growing shortage caused by the increased demand for gasoline, the Nebraska Petroleum Council has suggested some ways the motorist might save on consumption

--Keep your car's engine welltuned, with special attention to fuel and air filters, plugs and points, and emission control devices

-See that gasoline attendants do not fill your fuel tank to the neck Fuel can overflow while the car is in motion, or parked on an incline, and fuel can expand and overflow in hot weather.

-See that your tires are properly inflated, this saves on tire wear as well as fuel consumption

-Drive at moderate speeds. avoid ' jackrabbit ' starts

-Anticipate traffic situations to avoid quick stop-and-go action in your driving Accelerate gradually and avoid "floorboarding' your accelerator to achieve cruising speed

-Don t idle your engine for long periods while parked

-Whenever possible, use car pools or mass transit for commuting from outlying areas to offices and plants

Ex-Director Of Children's Home Dies

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)-Death has come in Omaha to a man who found homes for more than 2,000 children, Randall Biart.

The retired executive director of the Nebraska Childrens Home Society died in an Omaha hospital Wednesday at the age of 76.

He had served as executive director for 35 years before retiring in January of 1971.

Biart often described his role as that of being "a merchant of happiness."

In 1971, looking back on his years of service, Biart said, "I think we are given life and tal-ents to use. I think if you can use them for the benefit of others the satisfaction is tremendous"

Biart saw the number of children adopted from the home rise from 17 in 1936 to more than 200 annually.

Biart was a strong spokesman for the American enterprise system and spoke often in favor of the opportunity of helping Essentially foreign trade ment. generally is still of secondary importance for the Soviet Union whereas it is vital to smaller East European nations. For example, 40% of Hungary's annual national production goes into exports compared to only 5% for the Soviet Union.

Not surprisingly, East Europe has greeted the Soviet opening to the West with approval, though not without private apprehen-

Poland, previously reluctant to move too far ahead of Moscow, has felt freer to engage in commerce with the West, accepting long-term western bank credits necessary to broaden trade. Even East Germany and Bulgaria, long the most resistant, now share the general view that broader East-West trade would be healthy.

But East Europeans also have reason to fear being caught in a squeeze between giant partners on both sides.

Rumania makes little secret of its fear of being overlooked. Hungarian leaders worry aloud that the Soviet Union, in its eagerness to buy western technology with its oil and gas, will be increasingly unable or unwilling to fulfill the rapidly rising energy needs of Eastern

Another Hungarian concern, which western economists suspect may prove even more serious for East Germany and Czechoslovakia because of their higher level of technology, is that some key industrial goods will lose out in the Soviet market to higher-quality items from the United States, West Germany and Japan.

Two flat tires and several mild cases of sunburn have been the only casualties reported thus far.

That was the report on 35 bicyclists who began the fourth leg of a cross-country bake hike in Lincoln Thursday

Cycling across the country, covering the 2,371 miles between Flint, Mich., and Buena Vista, Colo., were 30 Flint area youth and their five sponsors.

Members of the Flint and Grand Blanc, Mich., Young Life, an interdenominational Christian youth movement, the cyclists cover between 60 and 80 miles a day, averaging 12 miles per hour. They then mount their bikes in accompanying trailers and ride a bit, while the trailers take them over the more hazardous terrains.

Covering one-third of the distance in the first three days out, the enthusiastic bike hikers bedded down for the night at Lincoln's First Plymouth Congregational Church prior to taking to the road once again Thursday.

In one and one-half hour's time, most had reached the "18-mile corner" Near near Milford, strictly adhering to schedule, despite a side-wind termed, "the most difficult aspect of cross-country cycling," by Frank Walker of Grand Blanc, Mich., one of the group's sponsors. "Going up and down hills tends to even out in the long run," he said.

Of course, there were a few stragglers whose bikes. bearing the six-foot-high orange warning flags, were seen waving above Nebraska's rolling terrain along Highway 6 west of Lincoln.

But all plan to be in Ericson, 173 miles down the road, by nightfall, according to Walker and Todd Scoville, also of Grand Blanc, Mich., the first cyclists to reach the "18-mile Walker, whose wife — the former Sally Laase, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. LeRoy Laase of Lincoln - is accompanying him on the long-distance trek, "mainly to cook and drive one of the trailers," said that the purpose of the cycling expedition was "for the kids to get to know us and each other a lit-

A similar bike hike was undertaken by the same group a year ago when the Young Lifers pedaled through Montreal and Toronto, Canada, enroute to Saranac Lake, N.Y.

At that time, the sponsors organized several training sessions, but "those who trained failed to take the trip, and those who didn't participate in the classes did," Walker said.

Did they offer similar training this year? "No, said Walker, "but these kids are doing great."

According to Dr. Hazelkorn the role of the counselor is not one of decision-making, but rather an agency of referral and a medium through which the clients may come to a rational decision by voicing their doubts, fears, questions and personal problems

Stating that this often entails approaching the situation on personal, technical, moral, legal and religious levels, Dr. Hazelkorn also noted, "While we await normative conceptions of policy and ethics, helping professionals must respond to the need to humanize the experience for those who want to terminate pregnancy, by helping women cope with the physical, social and emotional chological hardships for the experience."

Hazelkorn, professor of social Dr. Hazelkorn contended that the possible psychological ramifications involved, as well as the proper medical procedures. Expanding on these two ideas, she pointed out the ambiguity of the criteria used by psychiatrists in the approval of theapeutic abortions.

Almost any woman involved in a problem pregnancy could show one of these psychological abnormalities. They include the presence of mild suicidal thoughts or gestures; symptoms of mild neurosis; situations where the mother shows pronounced emotion or intellectual immaturity and is likely to be incapable of raising a child or coping with motherhood; and a broad range of socioeconomical factors that create serious psymother Attitudes on behalf of people (often including those in the medical profession), according to Dr Hazelkorn, "stem from personal beliefs and taboos about sexuality and reflect the inadequate educational preparations personnel have had in human sexuality, family planning and abortion.

"For the patients," Dr. Hazelkorn said, "it means pain, humiliation, feelings of worthlessness, shame, guilt and 'understandably' anger.'

Because of reduced pork supplies in 1972, there were three pounds less red meat per person in the United States than in 1971. At least 10 pounds more meat per person would have been necessary to keep 1972 meat prices at 1971 levels.

Officials Step Up Gasohol Planning

By BOB GUENTHER

Star Staff Writer The Legislature's Executive Board Thursday put efforts to get a grain alcohol distillery constucted in Nebraska into high

The board directed a delegation including an attorney, one or two state senators and members of the so-called Gasohol Committee to negotiate with the Midwest Solvents of Atchison, Kan., for a study it once conducted on the feasibility of constructing a grain alcohol plant in the McCook area.

It was estimated that the cost of obtaining an updated version of the study could cost the Gasohol Committee between $25,000 and $50,000

The action came after the board was told by two senators who went to Washington, D.C., recently to investigate the availability of funds for a gasohol project that data is needed to prove that such a plant would be economically feasible.

The idea of converting feed grains into anhydrous alcohol and high-protein animal feed was revived two years ago by the Legislature as a means to improve the grain market while providing Nebraska with a new industry.

The Gasohol Committee hopes to encourage widespread use of a blended fuel, nicknamed gasohol, which contains nine parts gasoline and one part grain alcohol The idea was originally intended as a means to replace lead in gasoline and clean up exhaust emissions With the fuel the plant.

shortages, the program has gained new impetus.

Tests are currently being conducted on the desireability of using gasohol as a fuel.

Sen. Jules Burbach of Crofton told the committee that the Atomic Energy Commission and the National Science Foundation indicated to him that funds to aid in location of a test plant could be available if the plant is economically feasible.

Midwest Solvents conducted the study, but decided not to locate the plant near McCook because a supply of natural gas could not be assured, according to committee members. Today, however, the plant's boilers could be fired with Wyoming coal, they noted.

Midwest has tentatively agreed to update the study and to provide to the state with it in exchange for the assurance it will have first shot at constructing the plant if the reassessment proves it is feasible.

Holly Hodge, chairman of the Gasohol Committee, said a meeting will be held after the Kansas trip to determine whether the updated study is worth what Midwest wants.

Sen Loran Schmit of Bellwood noted the current fuel shortage and said, "Now is the time to act while the pressure is on government to do something about the energy crisis.

A hearing has tentatively been scheduled Aug. 14-15 in Lincoln for an application to establish a full service bank in the Bethany section of Lincoln.

Ed Langley, an attorney for the founding stockholders, said a feasibility study showed the area in northeast Lincoln would be better served by its own bank instead of an auxiliary operation from an existing bank.

W.E. Young of Cozad, currently chairman of the Cozad State Bank, would be the president of the new bank should approval be granted by the State Banking Department.

Divorce Residency Challenged

A petition for dissolution of marriage has been filed in Lancaster District Court which challenges state laws requiring one year's residency in the state before a petition for dissolution of marriage can be filed.

The petition filed by the Lincoln Legal Aid Society seeks to dissolve the marriage of James Van and Nancy Lee Ashley. The couple was married June 17. 1966, in Lincoln.

The petition seeks a declaratory judgment that the one-year residency requirement be declared void as it is repugnant to the First, Fifth and Fourteenth amendments to the U.S. Constitution.

The petition alleges that the state law allows one class of persons, those who have resided in Nebraska since their marriage, instant access to the courts and compels a second class of people to wait a year before they are granted access to the courts, in violation of the equal protection clause of the Fifth and Fourteenth amendments to the U.S. Constitution.

In addition, the petition alleges, the one-year requirement amounts to a penalty and a restraint on the plaintiff's constitutionally protected right to Derring-Do!

By DICK HOLMAN Star Staff Writer Rollie L. Woodruff doesn't fly it the way it was found — upside down.

The 47-year-old flyer salvaged the 1927 vintage Curtiss-Wright Junior replica after a tragic crash last July 4 in which its pilot was killed

"The fellow that was flying it was a captain with Eastern Airlines a 747 pilot based in Miami," explained Woodruff of 3168 Puritan. "He had learned to fly in this type airplane 40 years

The captain had departed from Omaha on a leg of a crosscountry trip. Over northwest Missouri, Woodruff said a farmer reported seeing something fall out of the plane. "which obviously was the pilot." Then the engine quit, the plane turned upside down and crashed.

Woodruff bought the plane and took it to the Weeping Water airport. "I made over 70 trips back and forth" rebuilding it, he said.

The 30-year flying veteran, a former Air Force gunner, also owns another experimental plane and is a member of the Experimental Aircraft Associa-

The Curtiss-Wright original engine was 30 horses, Woodruff said. "This one is now 85. With the increased power, the wing can be shorter. The original wing span was 39 feet. Now it's down to a little over 30."

With the propeller behind the wing, the aircraft is designated a "pusher." Woodruff said, "That really makes it unique in that there are so few."

He said he has corresponded with the captain's widow, who "has been real great in her concern for our safety."

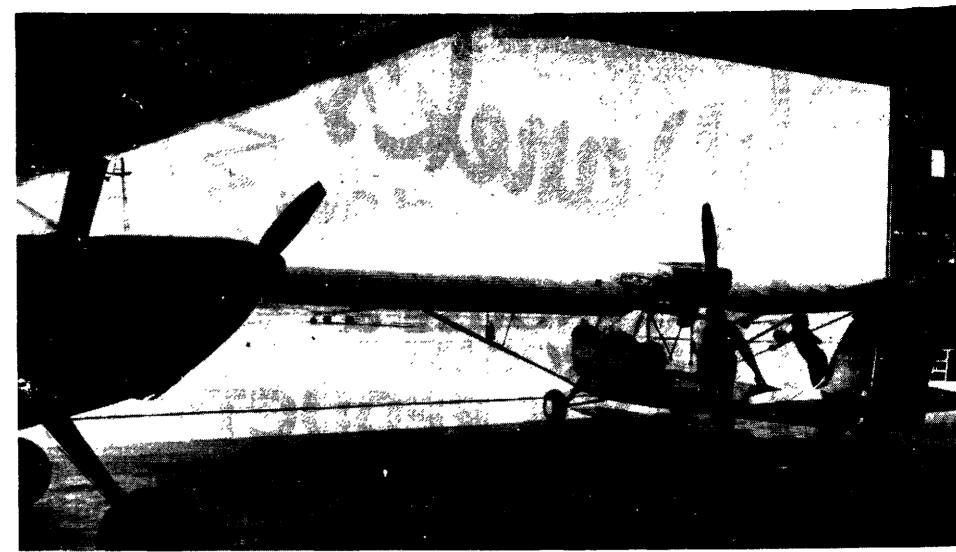

On his first flight, Woodruff said, "Everybody was uneasy." because of the plane's history.

Mrs. Woodruff recalled her apprehension: "When I saw him take off that time, I felt a little bit how an astronaut's wife

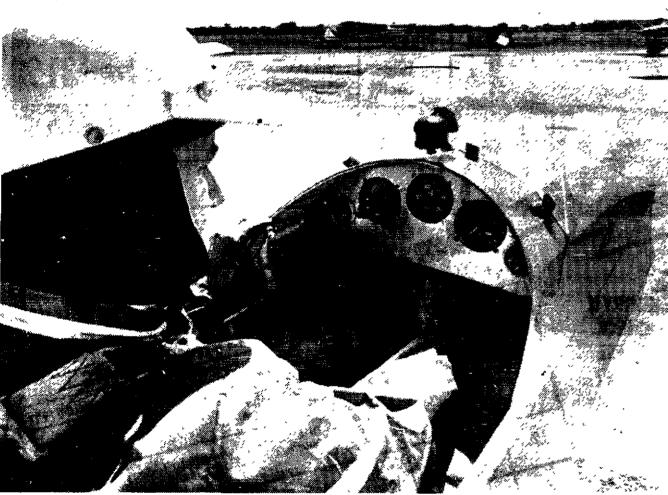

"The first landing was bad," Woodruff said. "It wasn't in balance. I had quite a bit of a control problem.

"Since then, I've had to add

The recent announcement that former Michigan State football coach Duffy Daugherty would join the ABC-TV crew of Chris Schenkel and Bud Wilkinson on Saturday afternoons - and probably one Friday in Norman, Okla. — caused Michigan State sports information director Fred Stabley to compile some of Duffy's more noteworthy comments during his years with the Spartans. A sampling:

Said Duffy after watching favored Dancer's Image run out of the money in the 1968 Preakness: "That's one good thing about a football game. You can't finish worse

Michigan State's 1969 schedule was loaded with top teams and Duffy was asked by a writer how he felt about the Ohio State game at Columbus.

"We have them right where we want them," he declared. "Between Michigan and Notre Dame."

Duffy apologized to a football writers' group for being late to a luncheon. "The one place I'm never late is to practice," he told them. "It doesn't start until I get

Duffy was asked what he thought about the new rule in 1967 which permitted players to come to the sidelines for conferences.

"I think it's great," he declared. "It might be a little embarrassing, though, if they chose to confer with the pretty cheerleaders instead of me.' Duffy's favorite line during the banquet season after his disastrous 3-7 record in 1967 was: "We won three games, lost none and were upset in seven." Duffy says all-American quarterback Dean Look (1959) once deserted his interference and carried the ball for a long gainer against Notre Dame. "I really bawled him out," Duffy says. "We don't have a play like that. I told him. "'Coach,' Dean said to me, 'we ought to get one'."

Said Duffy while in Miami for the 1957 North-South game: "Don't worry about us (North) not having enough good backs. It's the line that counts and we've got one. Anybody can carry the ball. It only weighs 14 ounces. Of course, some can carry it farther and faster than others."

"I have a couple of big freshman linemen preparing for a special job next fall," said Duffy. "At the end of each game, win or lose, they are to hoist me to their shoulders and carry me off the field. Then fans in the stands will say: 'Look, there goes old Duffy again. He might not be much of a coach, but his players sure love

The Argument Goes On

There was little argument in 1971 that the best college football conference was the Big Eight with Nebraska, Oklahoma and Colorado finishing 1-2-3 in the final Associated Press poll.

But in any other year, you can get an argument without even looking for one. So, ABC-TV sports publicist Beano Cook put his pencil to a pad of paper and came up with th records of inter-conference play over the past

While the last seven national champions have been Notre Dame (Midwest independent), Southern California (Pacific-8). Ohio State (Big Ten), Texas (Southwest), Nebraska (Big Eight), Nebraska again and Southern Cal for a second time, the Southeastern Conference has the best interconference record over that period -- 77-22-2 for a .778 percentage, not counting the ties, Cook's figures

Second is the Big Eight (86-41-2 - .677), followed by the Pac-8 (72-66-2 — .522), Big Ten (59-76-1 — .437), SWC (47-67-5 — .412, WAC (29-50 — .367) and ACC (13-61 —

"However, most of the SEC's edge has come against two conferences - a 42-9 spread over the ACC and a somewhat surprising 23-4-2 bulge against the SWC, thanks mostly to Louisiana State beating up (14-2-1) on the likes of Baylor, Rice and Texas A&M," Beano points out.

The SEC holds a 5-2 lead over the Pac-8, 3-2 against the Big Eight and trails the Big Ten 4-5. The last figure is attributable in large part to a pair of 1969 mismatches in which Indiana and Michigan leveled SEC weak sisters Kentucky and Vanderbilt 58-30 and 42-14, respectively.

The Rig Eight's favorite whipping boys have been the Big Ten (25-3) and the WAC (21-7). In 1968, 1969 and 1970, the Big Ten failed to win a game from the Big Eight while losing 14. Minnesota finally broke the spell in 1971 with a 38-20 triumph over Kansas, but the Big Eight took all three interconference meetings last fall.

The Pac-8 has a winning record over the seven-years in interconference play thanks to a 33-22 margin over the Big Ten, also its annual Rose Bowl patsy. The Big Ten shows a marked superiority only against the ACC (9-2) and the SWC (14-7-1).

The fast-rising WAC trails the Big Eight 7-21 but has just about held its own against the Pac-8 (16-18) and the Big Ten (5-6).

"Of course, regular-season games, booked years in advance, don't always take into account the strengths of the rival teams. Bowl games present a truer picture, since they always (or almost always) pair winning teams against one another," Cook adds.

In interconference post-season competition over the same seven-year stretch, the Pac-3 has won five of the last seven Rose Bowl meetings from the Big Ten.

The SWC shows a 6-4 edge in bowl games against the other six leagues while the Big Eight is 7-5-1, the SEC only 9-13-1, and the ACC and WAC both 2-2.

Until Auburn's 24-3 manhandling of Colorado last December, the Big Eight took a particular delight in picking on the SEC in post-season play over the survey period. Besides the trouncings which Nebraska (38-5) and Oklahoma (40-22) administered to Alabama and Auburn on Jan. 1, 1972, Oklahoma shaded Tennessee 26-24 in the 1968 Orange Bowl, Missouri beat Alabama 35-10 in the 1969 Gator Bowl, Colorado downed Alabama 47-33 in the 1969 Liberty Bowl, Neuraska buried Georgia 45-6 in the 1970 Sun Bowl, and Nebraska defeated Louisiana State 17-12 in the 1971 Orange Bowl, to nail down the first of its back-to-back national crowns. It adds up to a 7-2-1 advantage for the Pin Eight.

What he did, in fact, was "even better than I can do," make six birdies, shoot a nearrecord four-under-par 67, and blaze three strokes in front of the field after the first round of the 73rd U.S. Open.

"It's not possible to putt any better on this course," Player said, and none of the other 149 players in the field was in any position to dispute him.

Player, who spent 12 days in the hospital in mid-February for surgery that cost him four months of mactivity, had been so discouraged by his recent play that he's going back home Monday to practice for a month, win or lose here

But he was so buoyant at the end of his round Thursday that he said "this was the best round I ve ever shot in an Open.

It was so good that it missed by just one stroke the 20-yearold competitive course record at Oakmont, set by a littleknown Californian named Jimmy Clark in a sectional qualifier for the 1953 Open.

Player, one of only four men ever to win all of the world's major golf championships, has not tinished in the top 10 of the Open since he won it by beating Kel Nagle in a playoff in 1965. but he started out Thursday like he was going to make it a runaway.

He made putts of 25 and 20 teet for birdies on the first two holes and then, atter salvaging a par by sinking a putt after he missed the green at the third hole, picked up a third birdie at No 4, a par-5 where he reached the green in two and two-putted. Player's 30-foot try for an eagle barely missed.

Three more birdies tollowed in succession at the 9th, 10th and 11th holes on putts ranging from 9 to 20 teet.

The round was spoiled only when Player hit his approach shot at both the 603-vard 12th and 230-yard 16th holes into bunkers and made bogevs

But even then he proved something by being able to twoputt from 60 feet at the 16th hole because Trevino among others. has said "you have to worry about 15-toot putts' at Oak-

Rivalry Set For Ak's Laddie Stakes

By RANDY EICKHOFF

Star Sports Writer Omaha - Bevilacqua Stables' Cho Choo Lou will renew his rivalry with Milt Moskovitz' Royal Leo M. Friday during the running of the $15,000-added The Laddie Stakes for Nebraska bred 2-year-olds over 5 furlongs.

In their last outing, Cho Choo Lou finished second by one an one-fourth lengths to Royal Leo M. but was moved up to collect the winner's share of the purse when the 2-year-old by Sun David out of Royal Goldie was found to have been treated with the drug Procaine.

After an investigation, the racing commission ruled that the positive test for Procaine was the result of a buildup from earlier treatments and had not been administered as a stimulant. Royal Leo M., however, who likes to come from off the pace. will carry high-weight for the outing at 117 pounds and 10ckey D.W. Whited along with Spook Son, owned by Therron Johnson, who has won three times at Portland Meadows in Oregon.

Three other horses in the 12horse field have posted wins in previous outings, including Cowboy Caseio, scheduled to carry 114 pounds, Zim's Pride, owned by Bud Ogden also at 114, and Katherine Robinson's King Ody scheduled to carry Wayne Anderson at 112.

Paul Kemling's Roman Doc and Fred Ecoffey, 112, may prove to be an upset, however, as Roman Doc was running in contention with the leaders (third) on June 1 before faltering in the stretch run over five turlongs.

Others in the race include Sturdy Keach (112), Irish Whiz (112). Crafty Barzon (112), and the Jack Van Berg entry of M. H. Van Berg Stables' Rambunctions Road, who finished third on June 1 behind Land of Lake and will carry 112 pounds this time out, and Ramblin' Cec, also at

In Thursday's racing, Redolfo Calderon and Sonny's Delight, the odds-on favorite, defeated a field of five over six furlongs to return $3.20, $2.60 and $2.20 to backers Sonny's Delight, a 7-year-old dark brown mare owned by Otto Preuss, boosted her record for 1973 to two wins and one place finish out of five ctarts in defeating Singing Daphne and Don Lewis ($4.40 and $3.20) and Gracie C and Jack Fieselman Sonny's Delight ran the six furlongs in 1:11 3-5. . . well off the track record set by Vale of Tears in June 1969 of 1 07 2-5. It was her second straight victory.

Ed Garvey, NFLPA executive director said he has asked Rozelle to provide information on the drug surveillance program he proposes to recommend to the team owners later this month

Garvey also said Rozelle has been invited to attend a meeting of the players' representatives in Chicago on June 23, three days prior to the commissioner's sesston with the owners

At the meeting, he said Rozelle will be asked to explain the proposed program

Garvey made public his request to Rozelle after he was informed of an Associated Press story which disclosed that the House committee had recommended the NFL use urine analysis to determine if a player had used drugs

It is our position that the suggestion of urine analysis for professional athletes is an absolute outrage," said Garvey, "No responsible body, including the Staggers Committee, has even defined the problem and yet everyone seems to be coming up with solutions

"A basic tenet of our society is that people are innocent until there is some proof of wrong doing To single out profesathletes with unsupported allegations of this type is simply irresponsible." he said.

NEW YORK (AP) - "No one is after me and I'm not in hidsaid Muhammad Ali Thursday

The former heavyweight boxing champion scoffed at newspaper reports that there was "a murder contract out to get me" because of what he possibly knows about the killers of Major Benjamin Coxson.

"I don't know anything about said Ali at a news conference he called Thursday afternoon at the office of his laywer, Robert Arum Coxson, a flambovant man with a high style of living and no visible means of support, was murdered in his sumptuous home in Cherry Hills, N.J., before dawn last Friday. Ali has a home nearby.

The Philadelphia Inquirer reported Wednesday that an unnamed source said that Ali's death may be sought because of what he may know about Coxson's alleged involvement in drug trafficking

I don't know anything about Coxson's political affairs and I don't know anything about him and any dope Major Coson had a lot of friends," Ali said

Asked how long he knew Coxson. Alt replied "I knew him about six years

ISU Player, Strock Sign With Dolphins

MIAMI (AP) - The Miami Dolphins announced Thursday the signing of Virginia Tech quarterback Don Strock, who led the nation's major college players in 1972 in passing and total offense.

Strock was a fifth round draft choice of the Dolphins. He completed 228 of 427 passes for 3,243 vards and 16 touchdowns for Virginia Tech. His total offense tigure in 1972 was 3,170 yards in 480 plays. Also signing with the Dolphins were Dave McMurry, a detensive back from Iowa State, and tree agent Davie Webster, a tight end from Jack-

Preparations are being finalized for a public drawing on Monday that will tell applicants for firearm permits for antelope and for six deer units whether or not they will get licenses this

The drawing is scheduled for 9 a.m. at the Game and Parks Commission's headquarters at 2200 N. 33rd St. in Lincoln.

Only residents who applied between May 10 and June 1 will be included in the lottery. Unsuccessful applicants in the drawing will be given priority on permits in remaining units. provided they entered a second choice on their applications.

After they are taken care of, remaining permits will be sold on a first-come, first-served basis, with nonresidents eligible to apply July 1.

Other news of interest to outdoorsmen includes reports of fishing success from Game and Parks Commission conservation officers in the field. According to their reports, outdoor activity in-

Some 'Game' Laws Changed

With adjournment of the Unicameral, several new laws or changes in old laws are on the books that directly or indirectly affect sportsmen, accordingto the Game and Parks Commis-

Some passed with the emergency clause and are already in effect. This includes LB138, which limits free permits for persons over 70 to residents only, and makes free permits issued to veterans perpetual.

Another, LB163, transfers Stolley, Cottonmill, Arnold, and Longbridge state recration areas to local governments for use as public parks. Although the bill carried the emergency clause, transfer of the first three will not take place until January 1, 1974.

LB284 changed requirements for the posting of land for "hunting by written permission only." It reduces the minimum size of the sign and letters and lengthens the minimum interval between signs. This year, signs must be a minimum of 11 by 14 inches, with letters no smaller than 112 inches high, and the signs must be posted no more than 80 rods apart.

Most far-reaching of the bills is LB331. It (1) classifies tiger salamanders, mussels, snapping turtles, and crows as game; (2) requires a fishing license for persons over 16 to take tiger salamanders, snapping turtles, bullfrogs and mussels, and a hunting license to take crows; (3) eliminates requirement of a hunting license in taking bullfrogs; (4) requires a baitvendor permit to sell salamanders as bait; (5) provides protection for additional nongame birds; (6) provides the Commission with authority to establish regulations for control of nuisance populations of protected nongame birds; (7) gives the Commission authority to regulate importation of wild vertebrate animals and the release of them into the wild, and (8) eliminates the NEBRASKAlander permit.

Another bill, LB356, provides for the annual licensing of taxidermists who prepare specimens for other persons.

Fine Paid By Olds

Former University of Nebraska football player Bill Olds paid a $100 fine late Wednesday thereby avoiding arrest in connection with a recent conviction on a misdemeanor drug violation.

Olds last month pleaded no contest in Lancaster County Court to a charge of visiting a place where a controlled substance was being used. After being found quilty by Lancaster County Judge Ralph Slocum. Olds gave notice of appeal to district court. However, according to the county attorney's office, a $200 appeal bond was never filed within a required 10-day period. Motions seeking warrants for Olds and another football player Raiph Powell were filed Wednesday. However, Olds paid his fine before the warrant was served.

Powell, who was charged with the same violation in connection with the same Nov. 28, 1972, incident has not yet appeared to pay his fine. He could be Tunnels are not built lightly in China. A good many roads run around hills rather than through them. All hills contain a dragon. And most dragons are irritable.

I learned all this from a knowledgeable dance hall girl named Pak Chu. Pak Chu translates Pearl White. I did a piece on her called "The Perils of Pauline.'

This was the title of the silent film serial I adored from the popcorn rows on Saturday afternoon. Who played in it? Pearl White, that's who. Ask your mother. Ask your grandmother.

In return for this information - ("Dragon no like people dig in his home," said Pak Chu) - I translated letter from her boy

It cost her $10 Hong Kong to get a translator — all the letters were in English from sailors.

It cost $10 Hong Kong to have a translator write back. But Pak Chu said it was worth it. She said: "When ship come back, sailor come again to dance She didn't like to pay out $10 to hear what they had to say.

When she wrote to them, she said: "Please send picture, please." She didn't want the picture -

I imagine they were flattered though. She wanted to see who was writing to her.

"Always remember face," said Pak Chu. "Never forget." With me around, she didn't have to hire a translator or a letter writer I did both for her. I added some purple passages. If they didn't come back to see Pak Chu next time in Hong Kong, they were made of steel.

The runways at Kai Tak extend far out into the water now. When we flew here in piston planes, the pilot had to lay the plane on its side as we skirted the Nine Dragon Hills.

Then it was a straight shot skimming rooftops. They laid the plane down at the exact end of the runway No room to spare. If the brakes failed, you the Medical Center.

After a few days in the Medical Center, Jason was getting much better, but Jennifer still was in bad shape.

Mrs. Musiel said Jennifer got pneumonia and suffered a partially collapsed lung. Medication has helped her recover since then.

'Miracle Room'

The infants were cared for in the Medical Center's neonatal center, dubbed "miracle room" by hospital personnel, after which they were transfered to a convalescence room.

'You know they're coming along fine then, but they're still under observation 24 hours a day," Mrs. Musiel said.

Infants remain there until they weigh enough to come home, she explained. Monday the Musiels were notified their newborn twins could come home.

Mrs Musiel sat in a rocking chair in her mobile home Tnursday and talked of the past two traumatic weeks. She cradled Jason and his afternoon bottle in her arms and rocked gently back and forth. Still In Haspital Jennifer still is under doctor's care at St. Elizabeth. She needs to gain a pound and a half before she can go home.

Mrs. Musiel said Jennifer is doing well, but still has a problem - "She forgets to breathe once in awhile," slie said. When this happens, her incubator machine home emits a beeping noise that warns nuses, who go in and wake her to start her caying and breathing.

Mrs. Musiel - a mother of two older daughters, Shelley, 12, and Jolene, 612, who looks younger than her 29 years - has nothing but praise for the NU Medical Center and the lifesaving incubator machines.

"Without these machines they wouldn't be here today," she sard.

"I can't say enough about (the Medical Center)," Mrs. Musiel added. "They call it a 'miracle center and that's what it is."

Bought Incubater She mentioned that the chairman of the pediatries department at the Medical Center, Dr. Gerald Van Leeuwen, and another doctor, together bought an incubator machine to join the one in the mobile hospital van.

They paid for it themselves, she said, because the Medical Center didn't have the money and because of the problems otten associated with multiple births, like that of the Musiels.

"It takes a guy who's pretty dedicated to his work to take money out of his own pocket," Mrs. Musici remarked. She estimated it may have cost them clese to $10,000.

Statt Helpful At the Medical Center, she said she and her husband were not always sure of what was happening, but that "the doctors and nurses were very helpful. They didn't hold anything back from us and if there was a problem, they told us Her first reaction to being told the twins must go to Omaha for intensive care was fear, Mrs Musiel said. She said she figured they weren't going to live and that \ why they were being taken to Omaha After the doctors explained that was their only hope. Mrs Musiel said she agreed

She said she and her husband felt "an awful feeling of fear and sorrow" during the most critical periods.

' You don't know from one moment to the next if the phone's going to ring (with bad news)," she added

Now the fear and worry are over Her feelings now are those of exhaustion "I'm awfully tired," she said, laughing, "I'm terribly glad it's over And relieved."

Commodities Limits Lower

Chicago (AP) - Commodity futures spun wildly through an extraordinary range on the Chicago Board of Trade Thursday and closed on limits lower.

This was the trade's reaction to President Nixon's new rules on controls.

Prices in the major pits either opened the limit lower or reached that point some seconds later, then advanced sharply, only to close on limits lower.

Hog Market Prices Skid

Omaha, Neb (AP) - President Nixon's announced price freeze was cited by most observers as the prime single factor stirring the hog market here Thursday

Trading opened at sharply lower prices an extremely slow note as buyers attempted to shave as much as 2 00 or more from the previous day's costs

However, improving demand, partially from shipping interests. pepped up things at mid day and prices were 50-1 00 lower, but with some consignments still in first bands

Sows were un even at 25-1 00 lower

Cattle trade was in definite contrast to the hog market A part load of choice and prime 1,402 lb steers turned at 47 00, more desirable lighter 975-1,200 lb choice steers were 46 50-47 75; good and choice 43 00-

Possible Impact Eyed Of Economic Policies

President John F Kennedy popularized the aphorism that politics is the art of the possible. and the Nixon administration has also acted under the same

If out of Watergate is to come more respect for statesmanship and less complacency toward political manipulation, then benefits will have resulted from an unsavory chapter. It would be well to redefine statesmanship as the politics of truth telling.

It is too early to write the definitive history of this period Extreme partisans purport to be eager to get through the current allegations and revelations so that President Nixon can give his undivided attention to the great matters of state

Reversal of Views

Unquestionably President Nixon has undertaken significant foreign initiatives and his knowledge of governmental affairs is deep. In economic matters, however, the jury is still out The lack of fixity of purpose, culminating in controls in August 1971, was a reversal of Nixon's earlier free market and budget balancing views. At the time it seemed frivolous for the flexible Nixon to describe himself as a Keynesian

No cult of personality-to borrow Khrnshchev's nhrase-should deflect us from keeping our eyes on prudent operating principles. The question must be raised whether we haven't lost time in dealing with the root causes of inflation by the diversion of controls, which at best deal only with the sumptoms of inflation.

Jury

Inflation is brought on by votehungry politicians who purport to give something for nothing The cost of free bread and circuses" lies in subtle confiscation by inflation of the purchasing power of saved dollars

Controls pull the wool over people's eyes and take their attention from the desirability of prudence in fiscal and monetary

It's misleading when the economy is over heated to condone federal deficits on the specious ground that the receipts and expenditures would be in balance if we had what theorists call 'full employment Likewise, instead of a stop and go monetary policy, the goal should be to achieve sustainable prosperity by increasing the money supply in tempo with real

Incentives Needed

If we are to compete in global markets, we should strive to get our costs down through further technological improvements but demagogues denounce useful incentives, such as the investment credit, accelerated depreciation and depletion allowances, as nothing but tax loopholes

To become competitive again. while improving our own technology, we should strive to keep further increments in U.S. labor rates in line with productivity gains. We should reexamine the labor-management legislation

There's bipartisan responsibility for phony pretenses that the centralized economic planners know how to avoid depressions Theoretical advisers of both parties have groped with the problem, as they received on-the-job training at the public's expense
